Clovis, Folsom, and Gault

A line that has been attributed to Mark Twain, Will Rogers, and various other people, says "It ain't that we're ignorant; it's just that so much of what we know ain't so."

For a very long time, probably a century or so, we have "known" that the Clovis people were the first people to enter the North American continent. Next, we were told, were the Folsom people. We have their distinctive projectile points, both made from Alibates flint. We'll know more about all this after hearing Dr. Asher this month.

The Gault Site has long been considered to be a Clovis site, but it appears that there is much older material below the Clovis layer. For want of a more precise name, as far as I know those people are called Pre-Clovis.

It will be interesting to learn more about all of these groups, where they came from and whether they are connected to each other somehow.

PANHANDLE ARCHEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

Minutes of May 16, 2018

The meeting was called to order by President Veronica Arias at 7 p.m. in the Amarillo Downtown Library.

There were 12 persons in attendance.

PROGRAM: The program for the evening was "A Fourteenth Century Star Chart from the Southern Plains" by Dr. Susan C. Vehik. Dr. Vehik discussed how she came across this finger impressed daub and how she came to the conclusion of these impressions being a star chart.

MINUTES: Careyn Henslee moved that the April Minutes be approved as published in PASTIMES. This was seconded by Rolla Shaller and the Minutes were accepted.

TREASURER'S REPORT: Pam Allison was absent, therefore there was no Treasurer's Report.

PUBLICATIONS REPORT: Rolla Shaller reported an ending March balance of $1,253.88 in the Money Market Account, and $5,122.16 in the Certificate of Deposit. $120 were spent on Southwest Federation Transactions and $10 were spent on dues for the Southwest Federation.

OLD BUSINESS: Rolla announced he received the quotes for the brochures. Sir Speedy's for 500 was going to be $285, and for 1000 it would be $403. Swifty's for 500 it would be $252.83, and for 1000 it would be $310.07. Scott motioned we go with Swifty and it was unanimously approved that we would get 1000 from Swifty.

Scott announced that TAS has signed a contract with Embassy Suites in Amarillo and almost all of the demands set by TAS were met by Embassy. The dates for the 2019 Annual Meeting will be October 10, 11, and 12. The Chamber of Commerce said they will put down $5000 toward the conference that can be used for things such as tours.

NEW BUSINESS: Rolla announced that two to three years ago the Southwest Federation started upgrading the constitution. It is now typed and done. He also has federation publications for sale for $12.00. The Federation wants to develop a website. Tom Ashmore said he thinks there are free websites available which include ads. Tom would manage the site. This was voted for unanimously. Doug announced that TAS is revamping their website. Erin Frigo is willing to set up a Facebook page and maintain it. After some discussion this was approved unanimously.

Scott said the Stone Age Fair was awesome.

The meeting adjourned at 8:19 p.m.

Where's the Point? Regional Pattern Interpretations in Clovis and Folsom Artifact Distributions

By Brendon P. Asher

Abstract

Clovis and Folsom/Midland artifacts are not evenly distributed across the Central Plains. This presentation reviews private artifact collections and isolated artifact discoveries from the Continental Divide of Colorado to the eastern Kansas border to characterize Clovis and Folsom land use and lithic procurement across the Central Great Plains. It is argued that artifact distributions are influenced by a variety of modern factors including ground surface visibility and collector/research intensity. Prehistoric factors are also considered, including changing environmental conditions of the terminal Pleistocene and diverse land use and resource acquisition strategies between Clovis and Folsom groups.

Biography

Brendon P. Asher is the Director of Blackwater Draw National Historic Landmark and Museum and an anthropology instructor at Eastern New Mexico University. He received his PhD in Anthropology from the University of Kansas in 2015. His dissertation addresses Clovis and Folsom lithic procurement and land use across the Central Plains. Through this research, he has been afforded the opportunity to work extensively with private artifact collectors and is passionate about fostering collaborative efforts between avocational and professional archaeologists. Asher's research interests are diverse, ranging from early peopling of the Americas to the impact of European trade goods on traditional chipped stone technologies. He is currently leading a number of projects addressing Clovis projectile point morphology and variability from the Clovis type-site.

COOPER BISON KILL SITE

This year marks the 25th anniversary of a major discovery made by the Oklahoma Archeological Survey! In 1993, fieldwork began at the Cooper Bison Kill site in Harper County. The site was quickly recognized as the largest Folsom bison kill site in North America. Fluted Folsom points are known to date between 10,900 and 10,200 BCE. During the 1994 field season, crews under the direction of Dr. Leland Bement uncovered a bison skull painted with a red lightning bolt motif. The skull was found among bison bones from one of three kill episodes represented at the site. The skull, which was later found to have additional painted areas, is the oldest known painted object in North America.

To celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Cooper bison kill and the discovery of the painted skull, for the next eight weeks the Oklahoma Archeological Society will be publishing weekly posts with information about this spectacular find. Our posts will provide details about what we have learned from the Cooper site, including information about Paleoindian peoples, Folsom points and hunting practices, Oklahoma's environment in 10,500 BCE, and the bison herd itself. We'll also be discussing other early bison kill sites in Oklahoma found since the Cooper discovery. Our celebration of the 25th anniversary of the painted skull discovery will culminate in a public talk by Dr. Leland Bement entitled: The 25th Anniversary of the Cooper Painted Skull: What We've Learned about Paleoindians in Western Oklahoma.
